IT TOOK LOTS OF NERVE.

But the Keeper's Logic Was Too Much For the Crazy Man.

"Presence of mind is something every one should possess, as it is needed in all our lives at some time," remarked a well known business man the other day. "The most remarkable example of it I ever came across happened in the Utica Insane asylum some years ago when I was living in Utica. A keeper in the institution whom I knew very well told me the story himself, and I have every reason to believe it a true one. This keeper was an old timer at handling crazy people, and if it hadn't been for his presence of mind he would have been dead long before.

"One time he had occasion to go up on the roof of the institution to fix something. He crawled up through the trapdoor and was working on the skylight, when one of the inmates startled him by catching him by the shoulders. The insane man was a large and powerful fellow and one of the most ungovernable in the building.

"'I'm going to throw you off the roof,' said the fellow, glaring at the keeper.

"'Oh, no, you are not. You couldn't,' the keeper answered calmly. 'It would not do.'

"'Then you'll have to jump off.'

"'Oh, I could do that easily enough,' said the keeper, smiling faintly. 'Any one could do that. You could yourself. But I tell you what I can do that you can't. I can go down to the ground and jump up here.'

"The insane fellow laughed in a hysterical manner and challenged him to do it, and the keeper, telling him to stand near the edge and watch, went down through the hatchway and escaped. It took nerve, but it saved his life."—Philadelphia Call.

Ways Which Are Chinese.

Few Chinese gentlemen, when provoked, can refrain from language that outvies all that is commonly included under the word billingsgate. The man who the other day seemed to regard his friend as a cloud encircled deity now seems to regard him as a malignant demon. His ancestry is described with much minuteness of detail. His mother is a near relative of Cerberus! Every mandarin exhibits "the strange case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

In some of the Chinese bluebooks relating to foreigners there is no lack of what answers to coolie curses. We are a set of eye scoopers, baby boilers and the like. A certain term of scorn being objected to in earlier years, it is paraphrased now, and has lost nothing in the process. It was a classical hint, whose force lay in certain passages which foreigners were not supposed to have studied. It portrayed the foreigner to the Chinese literary mind. But the foreigner trampled upon Chinese delicacy of feeling and rejected a term which the Chinese seem to have thought rather a condescension than otherwise.—Contemporary Review.

The Mother at Home In France.

In French families, particularly of the middle classes, the preponderance of the mother is very strongly marked. It is easily explicable by very evident causes. She rules the house in detail, she gives orders to children and servants, so that the father appears infrequently as an acting authority. She wins power by her activity and attention to detail, and by her presence. The father is away during the daytime, and is considered to have but two duties in life, regularity in monthly payments for household expenses and regularity at mealtimes. The monthly payments are not seen by the children, still less the labor and intelligence that go to the earning of them, but they feel the maternal power. The servants are usually women, and a man cannot command women. He may ask for services gently—he does not give orders as he would to a man servant. —Philip Gilbert Hamerton in Forum.

A Snake That Squirts Poison.

M. Hoehnel, on his travels to Lakes Rodolphe and Stephanie, found a serpent between two and three feet long coiled in one of his small boxes. After the rainy season, and when his servant tried to kill it, the animal launched a jet of liquid in his eyes, which made him scream with pain. Hoehnel was more cautious, and advanced in such a way that the draft carried away the liquid, but a few blackish drops fell on his neck without any effect. An Arab guide, however, received the shot in his eyes and recoiled with pain. Eventually the snake was beaten to death as it tried to escape. A lotion of diluted sal ammoniac was applied to the injured eyes and cured them in 24 hours.—London Globe.

An Undertaker's Assertion.

An undertaker said once, in repeating some absurd speech that he had overheard, "Funerals are always funny, but this was the funniest one I ever presided over." Probably the reason for this assertion is to be found in the fact that it is not only a step from the sublime, but also from the touching to the ridiculous, from pathos to bathos. And the mind, concentrated on one all important consideration, is almost surely betrayed through that concentration into eccentricity of conduct.—New York Mail and Express.

Occult Science Failed.

"I interviewed a fortune teller the other day," remarked Squildig.

"Well?" was McSwilligen's interrogative reply.

"It was a clairvoyant, who claimed to be able to reveal the name of your future husband or wife, restore lost property, find hidden treasure, bring together estranged lovers and furnish tips on races and sure pointers in the speculative markets."

"Then I suppose you got a pointer or two on stocks, acted on the advice and now want to borrow $5 to tide you over until next payday," said McSwilligen.

"Not at all. I asked the seer how business was with her, and she said it was very poor. Clients were few and far between, and she led me to believe that the clairvoyant trade wasn't by any means what it was cracked up to be. Then I asked her a question which made her accuse me of scoffing at the occult. She threatened me with vengeance and showed me the door."

"What was your question?"

"I asked her why she didn't take advantage of her knowledge of how races were to come out, and how the speculative markets would move, get rich thereby and quit fortune telling."—Exchange.

Disease In Impure Water.

Five and twenty years ago, during a most fatal epidemic of typhoid in the west of England, I had to assist the government inspector in tracing its cause to its source, and the result was most conclusively established as due to impure water. The supply of water as it entered the town was pure, but in many houses the water closets were supplied by the same pipe and cistern as the water for drinking purposes. As the water was turned off during the night to prevent waste, the pipes emptied and subsequently became filled with air poisoned by the foul gases from the closets, and when the town water was turned on in the morning it rapidly absorbed the poisonous air in the pipes.

The outcome was that those houses supplied from this source were decimated by an epidemic of typhoid. In those cases where the inhabitants got their water from wells it was found that they escaped, unless, as in many instances, they procured milk from the shops supplied with the tainted water. The whole problem worked out like a sum in arithmetic.—Gentleman's Magazine.

English Weather.

I never saw a whole day in London that could honestly be described as "fine," let alone the hyperboles. One may speak of a fine five minutes, a fine half hour or hour. Nothing beyond that so far as I could see.

It is a settled point among scientists that with his naked eyes no man can gaze at the noonday sun. I am prepared to confound these learned theorists. On the 1st of August, 1890, about 1 p. m., I gazed at the London sun from the top of an omnibus standing near Hyde Park corner. I take my oath on it that, to the best of my knowledge and belief, I did gaze at the sun, did stare at him boldly, did, in fact, outstare him and make him retire behind the gathering clouds.

This is a historical fact, and I record it, therefore, with all the pomp and circumstance befitting it. I give date, place and hour, which is more than most of our modern scientists do in announcing their discoveries of mares' nests.—"The Indian Eye on English Life."

Scottish Trade In 1590.

Some idea of the miscellaneous trade then carried on by a Scottish merchant may be formed when it is stated that David Wedderburne exported wheat to Spain, herring to France, powder to Rouen and Bordeaux, salmon to Flanders, cloth to Norway and "woffin beddis cloth" to Sweden.

In exchange for these he imported wines—"Clarit, Burdeaux, Alagant, Muskedallis and quhyt wine"—from France and Spain, "apels and unzeons" from Flanders, lint from Norway and Sweden, silk, velvet, vinacre, "oly doly" (olive oil) from France, "pentit brods owergilt" (pictures) from Holland, silk "grew grain," confectionery and "sucher candee" from Flanders, "murmblade" from Spain, and countless other commodities intended rather for the upper classes than for the craftsmen.—Scottish Review.

An Afterthought.

A charming young girl, well known in Washington society, who would like to work for the government if only for fun, took the census examination the other day. As she was educated abroad, she would hardly be supposed to know much about the public institutions of this great country. But she did. In answer to the question, "What class of people are supported by the government?" she said: "Government employees, embassadors, consuls, senators and congressmen," and as an afterthought, "and the Indians."—Washington Capital.

Short.

"Why does Mr. Spatt wear such short trousers?"

"Because they fit him. I asked him for a small loan, and he said he was so short his cuffs made his head ache."—London Tit-Bits.

AN INTELLIGENT GOAT.

It Saw a Sign, Read It and Obeyed the Injunction.

Mr. J. R. Southard, who hails from Newark, N. J., sells caskets for a Cleveland burial case company,—ultimate receptacles they are called in Boston. As would naturally be expected, Mr. Southard is far from being a jolly drummer, but is very solemn instead.

"You know Thompson of Oscaloosa, don't you?" he asked. "Well, I met Thompson down in New Mexico awhile ago, and he told me of a cultured goat whose acquaintance he had recently made at some watering place or other. He said: 'I went out to take a row one day after a night of jollification, and before I started I put on my latest and shiniest silk tile. I got into the boat and rowed awhile, and then stopped beside a rocky shore.

"'I looked up as I stopped rowing, and there stood a goat, gazing very attentively off in the distance. He was a fine animal, with a fatherly beard and a patriarchal expression, and I watched him for some time. I fell to ruminating upon the noble characteristics of the tribe to which he belonged, how they could climb and leap where no other animal could obtain a foothold, and I felt quite like a naturalist.

"'A gust of wind suddenly disturbed my peace of mind by catching up my tile and carrying it, turning and tumbling, to a rocky crag above me. The goat saw it as it settled down and started for it. He picked it up while I was looking for a way to get up the rocks and carried it back to where he was standing. There he set it down again, after which he commenced looking in the same direction as before. He looked awhile, and then put his forefeet on the top of the hat and looked again. Then he reached down and took a good mouthful of the silk, stripping it half way around the crown. Once more he looked off into the distance, and again he took a juicy mouthful.

"'I began to wonder what he was looking at, and seeing that the hat was of no further use to me I rowed on a little past the crag. I was at once confronted with proof that that goat was a cultured animal. Pasted on the rock in big letters was, "Chew Thompson's best plug."

"'I went back to the hotel convinced that I had seen a goat that could read.'"—Cleveland Leader.

Authors' Copy.

Notwithstanding the lapse of time, Sir Walter Scott still occupies a commanding position among our novelists. In early life he wrote a legible hand, though being

A clerk foredoomed his father's soul to cross,
Who pens a stanza when he should engross.

His stanzas displayed more character than his chirography. Toward the close of his career, when the great mind became obscured, his manuscript was crabbed, blurred and altered so as to be almost unreadable.

Fenimore Cooper appears to have written his numerous novels with a burned stick. Nathaniel Hawthorne's handwriting was irregular and indistinct. Dickens says he never copied, always sending the original draft of his works to the printer. The printer, however, would have been better pleased if Dickens had copied, for his manuscript is written in a galloping, slapdash style, frequently blurred and altered and very difficult for the compositor to set up.

W. M. Thackeray's manuscript is entirely the reverse. It is free from blots and erasures, the writing is clear, neat, regular and nearly upright, the words well apart—in short, a pleasure to read.—Chambers' Journal.

Names In Liverpool.

Mr. J. A. Willox, M. P., lecturing on "Names in Liverpool," said that, taking the traditional names of Brown, Jones and Robinson, the Liverpool directory showed that the Joneses so preponderated as almost to justify the description of the "capital of Wales" as applied to Liverpool. There appeared in the list close on 4,000 Joneses, about 930 Browns and 700 Robinsons. In addition to the 4,000 Joneses, which grand total, be it remembered—did not include their better halves nor the large array of little Joneses—there were nearly 3,000 Williamses and over 1,800 Davieses, besides Hugheses, Evanses, Edwardses and Thomases. A yet larger force, however, had to be reckoned in the great tribe or clan of the Macs. These, all told, were something over 5,000 strong.—Liverpool Mercury.

Geology In the Air.

"How is your cabinet of geological specimens coming on?"

"Oh, I got rid of it."

"Did you give away all those carefully selected geological specimens?"

"No. You see, there are any number of cats that congregate every night on the back fence of my back yard, and they raised such a row that I gradually threw all my specimens at them. I crippled the prima donna with a chunk of gold bearing quartz."—Tammany Times.

SONOMA INDEX-TRIBUNE.

SONOMA, FEB. 10, 1894.

H. H. GRANICE - - - - - - - - - - - - EDITOR

Will be Resented.

THE insult offered to the editors of California by the managers of the Midwinter Fair will be resented by every spirited newspaper man in the State. In so far as the INDEX-TRIBUNE is concerned, its editor would under no consideration so humble himself as to submit to being photographed, alle same Chinaman, for a pass into a four-bit show. The managers of the Fair are laboring under a false delusion if they imagine the average country editor is a chump and a Chinaman. The photographic clause in their Admission Exclusion Act will not work. The country editor has to put up with many disagreeable things in this life, and looks for most of his reward in heaven, but when it comes to treating him like a Chinaman in acknowledgment for his gratuitous work in helping to make the Fair a success he is going to draw the line and kick with both feet.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

Secretary Carlisle has sold those bonds, although it was necessary for him to invoke the aid of Wall street before he was able to do so, but it remains to be seen whether he will be allowed to use the money received for them to pay current expenses. Congress is very much divided on the subject, and for that reason failed to agree upon anything previous to the issue of the bonds, but its members seem determined to do something. The council of the Knights of Labor, who had their application for an injunction thrown out of court, say they do not propose to abandon the fight. Senators Allen and Stewart, who advocated the former's resolution declaring that the Secretary of the Treasury has no authority to issue bonds, received a recruit from an unexpected quarter when Senator Hoar of Massachusetts said at the close of a few remarks on the subject: "I feel bound by a sense of public duty to declare that in my opinion the bonds issued and sold by the Treasury Department under existing circumstances will be illegal, and will carry no constitutional or lawful obligation on the government for their payment."

It is always difficult to make a contest exciting about the result of which there is not a particle of doubt. The close of the tariff debate was made interesting by able speeches from the best men on both sides, including ex-Speaker Reed, Chairman Wilson and Speaker Crisp, but there was little or no excitement when the time arrived for taking a vote. The full strength of the opposition had been known since last Monday, and the passage of the bill had been conceded by all except those who allowed their wishes to blind their judgment Many believe that instead of being a source of weakness as charged by its opponents, the income tax amendment really strengthened the tariff bill. It certainly gained it ten Populist votes that it would not otherwise have received.

There is some uneasiness among the friends of the Statelets of Utah, Arizona, New Mexico and Oklohoma because of the statement that President Cleveland was using his influence to prevent the admission of any of them, and would, if he failed in Congress, veto the bills. The statement has not been authoritively confirmed, but the result of the inquiries made shows that Mr. Cleveland is unquestionably opposed personally to the admission of any more States for the present. Whether he will carry his opposition to the extent of trying to prevent Congressional action or of vetoing any or all of the bills that may pass is a question not yet authentically answered.

There are thrifty men in Congress as well as out of it, and the thrift of some of the Congressmen may soon develop a considerable scandal. The law provides for the payment of a clerk for each member of the House at the rate of $100 a month while Congress is in session, and some of the overthrifty members have been taking advantage of the hard times to employ clerks at much smaller salaries and pocket the difference. This has leaked out and the result may be an investigation.

The Senate has decided to end the unproductive debate on the bill for the repeal of the Federal election laws next Tuesday. There is little doubt of the passage of the bill, although it may be slightly amended, in which case it will have to go back to the House. It is not beleived that there is any foundation for the rumor that President Cleveland would veto the bill in order to clip the wings of Tammany.

The most pleasing thing about the special Congressional election in New York city to those who are opposed to the lavish use of money in politics was the crushing defeat of the candidate who openly boasted of his intention to spend $50,000 to secure his election. The other side may have spent as much, but they didn't boast of doing so, thus openly implying that votes are purchasable.

It is evident that the Senate Finance Committee does not expect to dispose of the tariff bill in a few days or even a few weeks. That committee has sent out about 400,000 circular letters containing a long list of questions concerning the tariff and its general effect upon all branches of commerce and industry and it is still sending out more. According to a census expert if all of these questions are answered and returned to the committee, it would take the entire force of the United States Census office three months to so classify and arrange them as to make the information they contain available to members of the committee. The committee has no such force of experts and has no way of getting them if they were wanted, but the idea shows how big a programme Senator Voorhees has mapped out for his committee, and does not promise well for speedy action on the tariff in the Senate.

The House started in to-day on a three days hurrah on Hawaii. Those who don't like noise would better get into their bomb proofs until it's over.

WASHINGTON, February 2, 1894.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucuous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

BLOODLESS ASSAULT.

He Didn't Get His Man for Breakfast After All.

On Tuesday morning last an excited individual came into town from the Boyes ranch and seeking out Deputy Sheriff Sparks informed that officer that he had ran a man through the body with a pitchfork and that he desired to surrender himself.

He stated that his name was James Rice and that he was a farm hand employed by Capt. Boyes on on his ranch near this place. That a fellow-workman, John Allen by name, had attempted to assault him with a club and he had been compelled to use the pitchfork in self-defense. Rice was then arrested pending an investigation, and for a time excitement ran high among Sonoma's early risers, whom we might add by way of parenthesis, are mighty few.

Shortly after Rice had been taken into custody Allen, the supposed victim, came hurrying into town and swore out a warrant for his assailant's arrest. Both men were brought before Judge Cheney in the afternoon and upon investigating the case it was found that Allen had assaulted Rice with a club. That the latter had a pitchfork in his hand and attempted to transfix his adversary on its sharp-pointed tines. The thrust, however, was a weak one and aside from being knocked down Allen was not in the least injured. His assailant, seeing him fall, thought sure that he had got a man for breakfast and beat a precipitate retreat into town, leaving as he thought his victim weltering in gore.

When Allen made his appearance in town alive and kicking and uninjured the joy of the supposed homicide knew no bounds.

In view of the above facts the men were allowed to depart on paying costs of court, which both men promptly put up share and share alike.

THE HIGH SCHOOL.

Notified to Get Out of the Public School Building.

On Monday last the Trustees of the Sonoma Valley Union High School were notified by the Clerk of the Board of the Sonoma District School Trustees to vacate their present quarters on or before March 1st. For the past two years the High School, which is our pride and our boast, has been successfully conducted in the public school building in this place, much to the gratification of those of our people who take an interest in educational matters.

That a difference between the members of the two sets of Trustees should be allowed to engender the life of the High School is to be deplored, as its forced removal at this time will certainly cripple its usefulness in a greater or lesser degree.

The action of the District School Trustees, as soon as it became generally known, was heralded with satisfaction by the enemies of Sonoma, who at once commenced to agitate the removal of the High School to the old College building, which has been considered unsafe ever since the great earthquake of 1891. These evil-wishers of Sonoma know full well that if the High School is again re-established in the old concern that the parents of children will not allow them to attend, and that ultimately the High School will fall below the limit of ten scholars and then cease to exist.

This being so we trust that the Sonoma District School Trustees will rescind their action, which was no doubt hastily taken, in regard to forcing the High School to seek quarters elsewhere. If they do not do so the Sonoma Valley High School will have been practically killed.

JOHANNSEN VS. EMPARAN.

Result of an Artesian Well-Boring Contract—An Appeal Taken.

The civil suit of Johannsen vs. Emparan brought to recover the sum of $227.25, balance alleged to be due on a well-boring contract, came up for trial before Judge Cheney on Friday of last week. H. C. Gesford of Napa appeared for plaintiff and attorney J. P. Rodgers of Petaluma represented the defendant. The Judge after listening to the testimony gave judgment for plaintiff in the sum of $156.25 and $31.30 costs of suit. An appeal has been taken to the Superior Court by attorney Rodgers.

The suit is the outcome of a misunderstanding between the parties in regard to a verbal artesian well-boring contract.

The Sonoma House, Harry Fisheer proprietor, is a popular resort for commercial travelers. *

CITY TRUSTEES.

That Street Lamp — Vallejo Water Works—Other Matters.

The City Trustees met last Wednesday evening in regular monthly session. Trustees Seipp, Schocken, Trudgen and Litzius were present.

Owing to the absence of President Weyl the chair was filled by Trustee Trudgen.

Clerk Breitenbach was instructed to request the San Francisco & North Pacific Railway Company to enlarge their culvert on First-street West to prevent another overflow similar to that on the occasion of the recent heavy storm. Also, to request the same company to attend to the lighting of the street lamp recently erected by the city on the southwest corner of the depot grounds, as agreed upon some months ago.

The culvert on Spain street, opposite the Toscano Hotel, was ordered to be repaired by the Street Committee.

The following resolution was introduced by Trustee Seipp:

Resolved, That the owners of the Vallejo Water Works, supplying water to the city of Sonoma and the inhabitants thereof, shall be and the same are hereby required to furnish to this Board within thirty days a detailed statement, verified by oath, showing the name of each water rate payer and the amount paid by each during the preceding year, also, showing all revenues derived from all sources, and an itemized statement of expenditures during said time. Further, to furnish a statement, verified by oath, showing the amount of money actually expended annually since commencing business, in the purchase, construction and maintenance of the property necessary to carry on said business, and the gross amount of cash receipts annually for the same period from all sources. That the City Clerk shall give notice in writing to the owners of said waterworks of this resolution.

Upon motion of Trustee Litzius the resolution was adopted.

The following bills were allowed and ordered paid:

MEAGHER ASSASSINATION.

Arrest of the Suspected Murderers.

The assassination of Nancy Meagher, a blind woman, near Petaluma on the night of January 22nd, led to the arrest last Tuesday of Mrs. Elizabeth Bryan, Mrs. Mary J. Fowler, sisters of the murdered woman, and John Bryan, the sixteen-year-old son of the former. The arrests were made by Marshal Collins on the strength of the Coroner's Jury report which charged the sisters with having a knowledge of the assassination.

Shortly after the women and the boy had been taken into custody they were taken before Justice Scudder of Petaluma, where the complaint was read charging them with murder. Attorney Lyman Green then made an application for bail which was refused by Judge Scudder, and the prisoners were then hurried to Santa Rosa and lodged in jail.

The crime for which the prisoners are charged was one of the most heartless, wontonly and cold-blooded murders ever committed in this county.

The preliminary examination of the prisoners which was to have been held last Thursday in Petaluma has been postponed until next Wednesday. In the meantime they will occupy their present quarters in the County Jail at Santa Rosa.

BRUGGY AND ESPEY.

The Escaped Murderers Still at Large.

It is said the pursuit of Bruggy and Espey has been abandoned, but this is not so. A sharp lookout is being kept for the fugitives by Sheriff Allen and his deputies, as the men are supposed to be in hiding not ten miles from Santa Rosa, if they are not actually being cared for by friends right in that town.

Mrs. Bruggy, no doubt, knows where her husband is and is being closely watched.

The men seen in Thompson's barn near this place shortly after the jail delivery, Sheriff Allen says, were not the culprits.

The country newspaper is the most useful and least compensated of all agencies which stamp the impress of progress upon villages and inland cities. Without the aid of local newspapers, towns are as a rule thriftless and dead. It is common for "small," great men to speak with contempt of the local newspapers, but the town paper makes more great men out of less material, more bricks without straw, than any other factor in politics, and it is the one ladder on which men climb to local distinction as the beginning of wider fame. The local newspaper is the life of the locality, and the measure of its support measures the advancement of the people.

Are the fashions of our grandfathers returning? The advent of the bell-crowned silk hat with wide rolling brim, "peg top" trousers and long-skirted, high-waisted frock coat gave people the impression that the long dead and, as far as beauty was concerned, sincerely mourned styles of 1840 were being resurrected. And now the impression is intensified by the appearance of the "stock"—the real old-fashioned stock our grandfathers used to wind about their necks.

Lewis Adler, the pioneer resident of Sonoma, celebrated his seventy-fourth birthday last Wednesday at his home on Spain street, where he has resided continuously for over forty years. A large number of relatives and a few intimate friends were present to do honor to Mr. Adler who, notwithstanding he has passed three score years and ten, is as hale and hearty as most men at fifty.

Before deciding as to the color of your next new dress bear in mind the following rules, which have been given by a well-known artist: Choose always such tints as may always be found in the hair, eyes or complexion. For instance, a woman with blue-gray eyes should wear blues and grays; a brunette, creams, browns or grays. Women with florid complexions look their best in plum and heliotrope; also, in those grays which contain a tinge of pink and in red browns. Fair women should wear dead blacks, woolen stuffs or velvet. Brunettes always look best in satins or silks, the gloss of which sets off their skins.

On next Wednesday evening (St. Valentine's night) at the Mervyn Hotel, Glen Ellen, a grand ball will be held for the benefit of Sonoma county's exhibit at the Midwinter Fair. All of our people who are interested in our county display should attend, for on each one doing his share depends the success of our exhibit. On the 19th of last month a ball was given at the above place for the same purpose, but owing to the storm which raged throughout that night few were able to attend, and, therefore only a small sum was realized. The committee extend thanks to all who attended the ball on that occasion and sincerely hope that they will again lend a helping hand towards making this one a success. This being a valentine party it will be something unique, causing much merriment, as the distribution of valentines will be a feature of the entertainment. So all in quest of spending a pleasant evening should attend. The price of admission, including a fine supper, will be only a dollar.

The secret of success in life is to keep busy, to be persevering, patient and untiring in the pursuit or calling you are following. The busy ones may now and then make mistakes, but it is better to risk these than to be idle and inactive. Keep doing, whether it be at work or seeking recreation. Motion is life, and the busiest are the happiest. Cheerful, active labor is a blessing. An old philosopher says: "The firefly only shines when on the wing; so it is with the mind; when once we rest, we darken."

No matter how large the spot of oil any carpet or woolen stuff can be cleaned by applying buckwheat plentifully, brushing it into a dust-pan after a short time, and putting on fresh until the oil has disappeared.

"I have no objection, Tommy, to your playing with the rich banker's son," said the poor widow," if he is a good boy. But you don't toady to him, do you?" "Yep," answered Tommy, "Me and him plays leapfrog."

If very juicy pies or tarts are to be made, break a couple of eggs into the plate containing the rolled out paste, whirl them around so that the entire inside portion of the crust is wet. When baked, this will form a semi-impervious coating, which will not soak through for some time. More ordinary pie crust can be made with half lard and half butter.

Here is a good sauce for all kinds of steamed puddings: Beat half a cupful of butter to a cream, into which beat gradually one cupful of powdered sugar. When the mixture becomes light and smooth, add one unbeaten egg and beat rapidly for three minutes. Now add the grated yellow rind of one lemon and about one-third of a nutmeg grated. Then gradually pour half a cupful of hot milk into the bowl. Beat well and serve at once.

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SONOMA, SATURDAY, FEB. 10, 1894.

The Oriflamb.

The Carlovingian standard was really no other than the oriflamb, which has played so conspicuous a part in French history, but was not formally adopted until 1082, in the reign of Philip I. It consisted of a red or crimson flag, mounted on a gilded staff, the flag being cut into three "vandykes," to represent "tongues of fire," with a silken tassel between each.

The old romance writers pretended that the infidel was blinded by merely looking upon it. In the "Roman de Garin" the Saracens are made to exclaim, "If we only see it, we shall be dead men," and Froissart affirms that as soon as it was unfurled at Rosbecque the fog vanished from the French line of battle, leaving their enemies still shrouded in darkness.

Thus red, the color which the church has consecrated to her martyrs, became in its turn the color of the French kings. They wore it on their coats of arms through the whole period of the crusades, and as late as the closing decade of the fourteenth century were still faithful to this "glorious blazon."

The famous Du Guesclin, fighting against our English chivalry in Poitou, wore the red cross, while his adversaries wore the white. But after the great defeat at Agincourt, in 1415, the French kings abandoned the oriflamb, because it had been assumed by Henry V and his successors, and adopted white as a national color when England had discarded it. This is a curious but little known historical fact.—All the Year Round.

The Old English Post.

Under the direction of Cotton and Frankland (1690-1705) the operations of the postoffice largely increased. Cross posts were established: the posts themselves were farmed out to men of energy and capacity, who paid a share of the profits to the chief office, and under their sagacious administration the service was improved and extended. New packet boats of considerable speed were constructed by the king's order, under the guidance of Edmund Dummer, surveyor of the navy.

For him, as for the other pioneers of progress in early days, connection with the civil service proved disastrous. He lost his boats, his private property was mortgaged and foreclosed, and he died "bankrupt and broken hearted."

During this same period posts were established in North America, and for some time an ocean penny postage existed between our country and that colony. A reformer called Povey set on foot a halfpenny post in London, and the letters were collected by men in his employ, who rang bells to announce their approach. Povey was soon dispossessed of this arrangement, but letters continued to be collected by the sound of bells in London until 1846 and in Dublin down to September, 1859.—London Academy.

Presence of Mind in the Pulpit.

Frederick the Great, being informed of the death of one of his chaplains, a man of considerable learning and piety, determined to select a successor with the same qualifications and took the following method of ascertaining the merit of one of the numerous candidates for the appointment. He told the applicant that he would furnish him with a text the following Sunday, when he was to preach at the royal chapel. The morning came, and the chapel was crowded to excess.

The king arrived at the end of the prayers, and on the candidate ascending the pulpit he was presented with a sealed paper by one of his majesty's aids-de-camp. The preacher opened it and found nothing written. He did not, however, lose his presence of mind, but turning the paper on both sides he said:

"My brethren, here is nothing, and there is nothing. Out of nothing God created all things," and proceeded to deliver a most eloquent discourse on the wonders of the creation.—Sala's Journal.

The Story of a Crest.

There is a curious tradition concerning the almost miraculous preservation of the life of the first Earl of Kildare, which explains the origin of the crest used by the Offaly Geraldines. While an infant, so the record runs, he was in the castle of Woodstock, when an alarm of fire was raised. In the confusion that ensued the child was forgotten, and on the servants returning to search for him the room in which he lay was found in ruins. Soon after a strange voice was heard in one of the towers, and on looking up they saw an ape, which was usually kept chained, carefully holding the child in his arms. The earl afterward, in gratitude for his preservation, adopted a monkey for his crest.—London News.

What Might Have Been.

Some Manchester men were discussing Darwin the other day, when one of them less learned than the rest exclaimed:

"Darwen, I kna that place. A've been there monny a toime."

"Get out, you fooil!" said another. "We're nut talkin about the place called Darwen, but the mon. Hevn't ye nivver heerd o' Darwen? Why, if it hadn't been for Darwen, we s'ould all hev been chatterin monkeys and nut gentlemen like we are."—New York Tribune.

A CATARACT ON THE EYE.

How Its Progress May Be Arrested and How It Is Treated.

The term "cataract" is often applied to all visible opacities and white spots about the eyes, but properly it is limited to an opacity occupying the area of the pupil and resulting from a change in the structure of the lens. The lens is the most important of the transparent media of the eye, and it is the agent by which the rays proceeding from luminous bodies are brought to a focus on the retina and by means of which a picture of the outside world is formed on this membrane. It is composed of fibers which are interlocked with each other in such a way as to form a continuous layer. There are many layers, so that the lens resembles an onion in miniature. It is about one-third of an inch in diameter and one-fifth of an inch thick and is perfectly transparent, reflecting no light. A cataract consists in the breaking down of the fibers of the lens. These first become finely dotted with fat drops of microscopic size, which, after a time, run together to form larger drops, strongly reflecting light. The fibers at length rupture, so that they can no longer be traced under the microscope, and in their place are fat drops and chalky particles. It is to these, so to speak, foreign substances as well as to the altered disposition of the regular layers of the healthy lens that the white aspect of the lens in cataract is due.

As a rule cataracts form slowly. That form which results from injury—as from direct blows on the eye, the penetration of the eye by the point of a needle, a knife, a pair of scissors or a thorn—is rapid in its development. It is due to the admission of the aqueous humor to the substance of the lens and to the swelling up of its tissue. Such cases require immediate and skilled medical and surgical treatment. But the ordinary form of cataract is slow in its progress. It usually commences in one eye, which may be so gradually affected as to be unnoticed by the patient until his attention is suddenly awakened to the defect of his vision, when, on closing the healthy eye, he attempts to look through the telescope with it or by observing that he is unable to judge accurately of distances. The vision is often preserved when the cataract is far advanced, for the changes described occur in bars and patches, leaving portions of the lens clear and transparent, and through these, as through latticework, the patients often see fairly well—quite well enough to read or write. No means except operation are known by which a cataract, when once fairly formed, can be removed. But inasmuch as it is capable of being hastened in its progress by circumstances unfavorable to the general health, so it may be delayed by general attention to the constitution.

Good food, regular exercise, sound and uninterrupted sleep, a quiet mind and the avoidance of all work that may strain the eye would be the best means for delaying, or perhaps temporarily arresting, the progress of a cataract. If, however, it still continues to advance, an operation is the only remedy, and this consists in the removal of the lens or in its solution by the natural fluids of the eye after the investing capsule has been divided by a needle. The latter method is that usually adopted in children, the former in those occurring at an advanced period of life. The operation itself, though requiring much skill and knowledge, as well as constant practice, on the part of the operator, is not in itself a severe one, and the high interest which attaches to it is dependent on the importance of the issue rather than on any difficulty or danger in its performance.—New York Ledger.

An Irish Solomon.

A case came up once before the Eyrecourt (Ireland) petty sessions in which the decision handed down by the magistrates proved them to be worthy inhabitants of a world once graced by the presence of Solomon. The dispute was between two brothers and related to the ownership of a couple of ducks. One brother charged the other with having stolen both birds, and the latter flatly claimed that they were his own. The magistrates resolved to leave the question to the superior sagacity of the ducks. By their order a policeman took the birds in a bag to a point on the road midway between the homes of the contestants and there released them. The ducks separated, one going to the plaintiff's house, the other to the defendant's, and, in the words of the official report of the case, "the case was settled accordingly."—New York Sun.

High Priced Flats In London.

In the neighborhood of Westminster £250, £300 and even £400 a year are asked for seven or eight rooms, and in addition the tenant is compelled to do repairs and redecorate the interior at stated intervals. This of course includes taxes and water charges, but even with these thrown in the sums mentioned have a formidable appearance. At Kensington they are higher still, while even in Bloomsbury as much as £200 is demanded for a flat of eight rooms, the average being at the rate of £20 per room. These prices are far and away above those charged in Paris.—London Million.

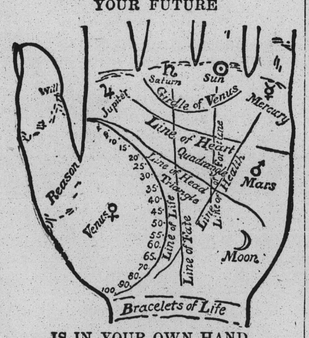
YOUR FUTURE



IS IN YOUR OWN HAND.

Palmistry assumes to tell what the lines in your hand indicate. It will amuse you, if nothing more. The above diagram almost explains itself. The length of the LINE OF LIFE indicates probable age to which you will live. Each BRACELET gives you thirty years. Well-marked LINE OF HEAD denotes brain power; clear LINE OF FORTUNE, fame or riches. Both combined mean success in life; but you must keep up with modern ideas to win it. You will find plenty of these in Demorest's Family Magazine, so attractively presented that every member of the family is entertained. It is a dozen magazines in one. A CLEAR LINE OF HEART bespeaks tenderness; a straight LINE OF FATE, peaceful life; the reverse if crooked. A well-defined LINE OF HEALTH spares you doctors' bills; so will the health hints in Demorest's. No other magazine publishes so many stories to interest the home circle. You will be subject to extremes of high spirits or despondency if you have the GIRDLE OF VENUS well marked; keep up your spirits by having Demorest's Magazine to read. By subscribing to it for 1894 you will receive a gallery of exquisite works of art of great value, besides the superb premium picture, 17x22 inches, "I'm a Daisy!" which is almost a real baby, and equal to the original oil painting which cost $300; and you will have a magazine that cannot be equaled by any in the world for its beautiful illustrations on subject matter, that will keep you posted on all the topics of the day, and all the fads, and different items of interest about the household, besides furnishing interesting reading matter, both grave and gay, for the whole family; and while Demorest's is not a fashion magazine, its fashion pages are perfect, and you get with it, free of cost, all the patterns you wish to use during the year, and in any size you choose. Send in your subscription at once, only $2 00, and you will really get over $25.00 in value. Address the publisher, W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., New York. If you are unacquainted with the Magazine, send for a specimen copy. A large QUADRANGLE means honesty; a large TRIANGLE, generosity; long FIRST DIVISION OF THUMB, strong will; LONG SECOND DIVISION, reasoning faculty. The MOUNT OF JUPITER betokens ambition; that of SATURN, prudence; the SUN, love of splendor; MARS, courage; MOON, imagination; VENUS, love of pleasure; and MERCURY, intelligence. Take our advice as above and you will be sure to possess the last and most valuable quality.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

STAR, LANE CO., OREGON, Feb. 8th, 1892.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,

Dear Sirs:—I have used your KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE for the last twelve years never being without it but a few weeks in that time and I have made several wonderful cures with it. I cured a Curb of long standing. Then I had a four year old colt badly Sweenied; tried every thing without any benefit, so I tried your liniment, and in a few weeks he was well and his shoulder filled up all right, and the other, a four year old that had a Thoroughpin and Blood Spavin on the same joint, and to-day no one can tell which leg it was on. These statements can be proven, if necessary; the four year olds are now seven and can be seen any day at Cottage Grove, Or. S. Z. PAXTON.
